

Word – Trust My heart, not the clock

Just like when you over feed your pets, you know it makes them feel good right then, but you also know it's not good for their health in the long run. The same way, babying My children is not good for them spiritually on the long run.

Yes I can answer even before you ask, and I sometimes do, but sometimes the best thing for you (even though it doesn't feel like it at the time) is for Me to answer you only once it becomes necessary. This is good for your spiritual health and growth. I will never leave you hanging though, but I will at times make you wait, wait for the right time. Trust My heart, not the clock.
